Goal: 2 Corinthians 9:1-15

1. Up to this point the Corinthians are a shining example of generous, love-motivated giving. There is one problem, they have not followed through with their desires. How does Paul address this?

When you have desires or have made commitments to do something for the Glory of God, and have yet to carry out your intentions, what would help you complete the mission?

2. Does God really need our gifts? If not, then, for what purpose(s) do we give unto the Lord?

What are the rewards and benefits of giving as they relate to others, ourselves, and the saints?

3. Do verses 10 and 11 imply that if we give we'll actually have more? Explain how this works.

4. What is the indescribable gift in verse 15?
